

You can help put the criminals behind bars

The Juststolen.net website assists consumers and Law Enforcement world-wide by providing access to registered property information.

When a lost or stolen item has been recovered by Law Enforcement, the item's description can be matched with registered property information to identify the legal owner. Law Enforcement can then e-mail the registered owner directly.

The only information Juststolen.net records is first name, email address and zip code; nothing else!

Juststolen.net provides consumers and businesses a free, safe and easy way to recover their valuables.

Take control and protect what's yours!

Break-ins occur regularly

How To

- To register your property go to JustStolen.net. Just follow the link that says Free New Member Registration.
- There are 5 fields to fill in to register, once you are registered then you can start adding your property.
- In the field that asks for your item's serial number, we strongly recommend to start all numbers with the prefix VU. (Example. VU00U3V9N3255, VUAB2342-211)
- Note: This is a rather large database and beginning your serial numbers with "VU" will help to narrow the field should you need to do a search for your property. Any item that has a unique number can be registered on this site, bicycles, computers, PDA's, tools, stereo's, anything.
- If you have a item that does not have a unique number you can engrave a number of your choosing, such as your student ID number, on the item. (Example. VU1A001234, VU2A001234, VU3A001234)
- Should your registered items become lost or stolen go to JustStolen.net print off your property description and give that to the reporting officer.
- You can then change the status of your property to lost or stolen and include the police report number.

Property Registration

Online

Record it, Report it, Reclaim it!

You spend your hard-earned money on expensive entertainment and computing equipment.

JustStolen.net was developed to provide a free, easy-to-use tools for parents, students, faculty and administrators to safely register and record valuable assets. This powerful database allows registered users to itemize assets, post photographs and identify valuables with detailed descriptions to aid in the recovery of an item in the event of a theft or loss.

As a student, or parent of one, you spend thousands of dollars for computers, cell phones, entertainment equipment and many other items of value. If any were stolen, would you have a detailed description of the items readily accessible? Juststolen.net would!

If you were to lose a credit or debit card, would you have easy access to the toll-free number to notify the provider?

would you have easy access to the toll-free number to notify the provider?

Juststolen.net would! Log the issuing card provider and their reporting phone number into your Items page. Access it anytime on-line.

Juststolen.net is your Number One resource for protecting your valuable assets. Just log in and start safeguarding your personal property today.

For Law Enforcement

JustStolen.net has been developed to be easy to use, reliable and effective.

Recovered items may be matched with registered owners through a search of the database by entering any of the following:

- ◆ Item description
- ◆ Serial Number
- ◆ VIN or license plate number
- ◆ Model number or manufacturer

In the event of a theft or loss, members add supporting information to their item's file: the investigating agency, phone number, case number and a brief description of missing property.

Law Enforcement will be provided a private number for 24-hour assistance.

JustStolen.net
Here To Help You!

2085 Centre St
Boston, Ma. 02132
www.JustStolen.net

Email: Info@juststolen.net