Student ID number/Social Security number _____

Address where you want to receive mail about your appeal:

City, State & Zip code _____

E-mail address _____

Step 2: Understand your situation. You have received a letter of suspension for one of the following reasons:

- while you were on financial aid probation during your most recent semester of enrollment, either you met the conditions of your contract, but your cumulative totals are still below standards or you did not finish all the courses you attempted with at least a 2.0 semester GPA; or
- your aid was suspended during an earlier semester and either your appeal was denied at that time or you did not appeal at that time; or
- your total cumulative credits exceed 150% of the number of credits required to earn the degree or certificate you are working toward.

Step 3: Attach the explanation of your appeal.

- If you have met the conditions of your financial aid contract, point out that fact.
- If you have attempted more than 150% of the credits required for your degree, request that we examine your transcript to see if we can exclude some credits from your total.
- If you have not met the conditions of your contract or want to appeal an earlier suspension, provide an explanation of the serious reasons that prevented you from meeting the academic standards and describe your plan for improving your academic performance. Serious reasons include extended or untimely illness, a death in the family, or some other serious personal or familial situation.

Step 4: Attach documentation of your explanation of serious reason. Examples of acceptable documentation include a death certificate, a relevant diagnostic statement or billing statement from a health care provider, or a written and signed statement from a third party familiar with your situation.

Step 5: Sign and date the following statement:

I certify that the explanation and documentation I have attached truthfully describe my circumstances. I understand that if I have purposely provided false or misleading information or documentation, I am subject to permanent loss of financial aid, fine, or other serious punishment from Vincennes University, the State of Indiana, or the U.S. Department of Education.
